

A Second Intermediate Period scarab with the Name of King Khayan

Circa: ca. 1620-1581 BCE

Glazed steatite. 1.85 x 1.3 x 0.8 cm (0 <sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> x 0 <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> x 0 <sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> inches)

Egypt, Second Intermediate Period, Dynasty 15th, reign of Khayan, ca. 1620-1581 BCE

With a beautiful glaze; an undecorated back and inscribed on the base with the cartouche of king Khayan — sꜣ rꜥ (hyꜣn) di ꜥnh, within a broken spiral border. The spiral design was one of the most important pattern of the decorative art of the Ancient world.

From very ancient times it was largely used by the peoples of Western Asia and the Eastern Mediterranean.

Pierced lengthwise. Beautiful conservation.

Khyan is listed as the third king of the 15th Dynasty — but, like most of the chronology of the Second Intermediate Period, this is just an educated guess.

He was considered one of the Great Hyksos kings, and his power extended beyond the Delta kingdom that was controlled by the Hyksos. His name has been found as far away as the Mediterranean shore and Crete.

As always, Manetho give him a long reign of 50 years, which is double what the normal modern estimate is. It is normally assumed that he ruled about 25 years, which is still a tremendous reign for the kings in this period, who often ruled only a small part of Egypt for a very small portion of time.

His name is well known outside of Egypt, with seals and other artifacts from as far away as Knossos in Crete and Bogaskoy (the capitol of the Hittite kingdom) and in the northern mountains of modern Turkey. Normally, his name is found with the title "Ruler of Foreign Lands".

Comparanda

A similar scarab of King Khayan in the Metropolitan Museum of New-York, 308.457

A similar scarab of King Khayan in the British Museum, London, EA66722

Literature

NEWBERRY, P.E., Scarabs, 1908, pl. XXII, 24

MATOUK, F.S., Tome 1. Les Scarabées Royaux, 181. Khyan, 193, 1971

HAYES, W., The Scepter of Egypt, II, P. 5